Following an early military career, Lee started a construction business - Hunters - in 1985. Over the next decade the company became established as an approved contractor to the insurance industry, providing services to household names such as Cornhill, Norwich Union, Prudential and Green Flag.

Having sold the reactive insurance operation in 1994, Hunters' focus changed to providing a specialised construction and refurbishment service to high net worth clients, and through Lee's leadership this remains Hunters' primary service today. Lee has built up a reputation with repeat clients for delivering high value, complicated refurbishments on time and within budget, whilst maintaining exacting standards throughout.

From 1992 the company also progressed to speculative development projects. Lee has been instrumental at every stage, from locating suitable projects through to establishing a purchase structure, securing planning and funding, development as well as long term management or disposal.

Whilst property speculation, management, development and general construction has formed the bedrock of Lee's experience, some insight into the leisure industry has been gained, particularly relating to exclusive venue hire, health and country clubs. Indeed Lee recently completed the redevelopment of Wickwoods Country Club, Hotel and Spa in Sussex.

Lee has established relationships with a number of high & ultra-high-net-worth individuals who continue to invest as joint venture partners in various projects.
